

This is a very nice review. It would be even nicer if it would point out more correlations between the texture analysis findings and histology/physiology and if it included a discussion of deep learning. Also, a more specific discussion of the relevant genetics would be helpful. IDH and MGMT promoters and EGFR amplification are not the only important molecular markers.